

And So You Were Born

AS SEEN IN

the Bonus DVD of the movie “40 Point Plan” discussed as a source of character development in children

Written by former UN Human Rights Council (UNHRC) session participant and voluntary researcher for the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF)

Mona Parsa, Esq. is a long-time devotee to fostering unity and understanding, firmly believing that a positive future begins with the education of children today. She is emcee of Soul Food, a monthly musical multifaith devotional program in Southern California, and co-editor of Legal Briefs on Immigration Reform From 25 of the Top Legal Minds in the Country, a resource book on avenues of immigration reform from policymakers currently and formerly in office, top attorneys in private practice, and well-known academics.

Colorful, whimsical illustrations hold the reader’s interest throughout as the reader learns of the great love that exists for them—from God’s love before and after birth, to love of family and friends—and about life’s purpose of spreading love to all as we unite in our diversities.

Beginning with a dedication page allowing for personalization (including space for a photograph, as well as the gift giver’s name, the child’s name, and date of gift), And So You Were Born ends with short writings from major faith traditions, notable world figures and various cultures on the themes of love and a purpose driven life.

“Helps children to value themselves, others and the world [and] to think about the values that will underpin their lives that will help to sustain our world in the future.” —Dr. Neil Hawkes, Founder and a Trustee of the International Values Education Trust (IVET)

“Special effort has gone into the creation of And So You Were Born to have universal appeal. While most children’s books and resources only entertain, And So You Were Born goes beyond to enlighten the minds of young readers.” —Preena Deepak, Culture editor, BellaOnline.com
